

Sports was such an influence on my formative years in the 1950s and 1960s not only playing each sport but the excitement, joy and pleasure of watching great performances and competition. It was my whole social life but it taught me indirectly discipline, hard work, teamwork, concentration, loyalty and determination. All these qualities that I learned at such a young age were instrumental when I embraced the Tao and its Way in my daily Taoist discoveries, practices, understandings, teaching and writing.

If any of you have the opportunity and time please read through all my college and Pro sports heroes over three thousand that had tremendous impact on my life growing up in the Midwest of American through the following 32 pages.

(This was our team that we listened to on the radio, Windsor Stadium preseason locker room visit at age 8 & every Sunday on TV (Stitched to Channel 6 Lansing for home games with a special back TV switch from Channel 2) for 15 years with my dad, the original Lion's fan (1934) & my brothers. We knew all the players & did an analysis of each play especially on defense when we watched. It was bigger than life; we lived for the Lions even through all their losses. The classic game of all time was Thanksgiving Day 1962 against their greatest rivals, Green Bay Packers when Karris & Brown sacked Bart Starr 6 times with a safety & dominated that championship team; we went nuts & it was the greatest thing in our lives.)
